

DUFFY VS. GLENDINEN.

The Cutting Scrape Which Happened at Jay Gould Heard in Probate Court.

A Number of Witnesses Who Saw the Occurrence Tell How it Happened.

Judge Howey Will Examine the Testimony and Render a Decision To-day.

The preliminary examination of John L. Glendinen for an alleged murderous assault upon Justice Frank Duffy at Jay Gould Sept. 28 was held before Probate Judge Howey yesterday, occupying the greater portion of the day. The matter was taken under advisement and Judge Howey will render a decision at 10 o'clock this morning. The territory was represented by Prosecuting Attorney Balliet, Judge Wm. E. Cullen appearing for the defense. There were a number of witnesses to the affray and all were present to give in their testimony.

The quarrel grew out of politics, Justice Duffy being a democrat and Glendinen a republican. From the evidence it seems that on a previous occasion some democratic error made a remark to which Glendinen took exception, and he and Duffy had some words about it. The night of the cutting there was a democratic rally in Jay Gould, and after it was over men were visiting the various drinking resorts. Duffy and Glendinen met in Jack Lawrence's and were there when a fight took place between two men, and Duffy in his capacity as a peace officer attempted to separate them, and in some way Glendinen interfered, or it seemed to Duffy that he did, so he pushed him back and angrily told him to attend to his own business.

Duffy started to leave the room when Glendinen applied a foul epithet—just what, was not testified to—and Duffy, turning suddenly, struck Glendinen in the eye. The two men tried to grapple and Duffy fell to his knees upon the floor. They then clinched and while struggling, Glendinen whipped out a pocketknife and cut his antagonist in the side, back and abdomen. The men were pulled apart after it was seen by bystanders that Duffy was injured and Glendinen placed under arrest. It was first stated that Duffy's wounds were fatal, but that was only a rumor. They were quite serious, however, and owing to his condition Duffy has not been able since then to appear as prosecuting witness. He showed no signs yesterday of ill health.

The defense of Glendinen was that he acted in self-defense. Prosecutor Balliet held that the evidence went to show that after Glendinen was struck and Duffy fell upon the floor that Glendinen, in renewing hostilities, became the assailant and was not entitled to any protection of the law afforded to a man assailing to show that his life was in danger to warrant him to resort to the desperate means he did to defend it. He also claimed that two witnesses had testified that he was glad he had missed Duffy the first time he struck at him, and argued from that that the first blow must have been struck at Duffy's throat, which blow jeopardized the man's life as well as the wounds inflicted upon his person.

Judge Cullen held that the complaint charged that his client committed an assault upon the prosecuting witness when the evidence proved the contrary. It was ludicrous for the prosecuting attorney to call the knife used a murderous weapon, as it was an instrument one would hesitate to use to attack a bedbug. The case should be dismissed. The judge will decide but one point and that is whether Glendinen should be held to the grand jury or discharged.

Hurt at East Helena.

L. R. Wright, a Northern Pacific switchman, was badly injured at East Helena yesterday. He was standing on a flatcar while another car loaded with telegraph poles was coming along the track to connect with the car on which he was standing. The poles projected some distance from the car, and before Wright was aware that the car was coming, he was struck by the poles on the head and knocked off, one of his legs also being badly injured. He received two gashes on the head. He was brought to Helena and taken to his home on Billings street.

Wright is said to be the most unfortunate railroad employe in Helena, having been injured many times before.

An Old Man Knocked Down.

John T. Gilpatrick, aged 80 years, while crossing Main street yesterday, was struck by the front wheel of George Breck's buggy and knocked over like a log. The buggy was stopped before it passed over him, and some bystanders carried the feeble and tottering old man from the street and he soon recovered from the shock. Mr. Breck was not driving fast and was occupied in conversation with his companion in the buggy, George Burris, and did not see the old man, who fortunately was not seriously hurt.
